

CREW OF SUNKEN SUBMARINE SAFE

Flight of S-Boat Standing on Nose
In Mud For 45 Hours Disclosed
To Merchant Vessel By Telephone
News—Submarine Being Towed

B. Telegram to the Freeman.
New York, Sept. 3.—Four officers and twenty-four men, the crew of the United States submarine S-5 were safe today after submerision in their disabled vessel almost 48 hours in the Delaware Capes.

A radio message received today at the Brooklyn Navy Yard said that the merchant ship Albatross was towing the disabled underscas boat to the breakwater.

The plight of the S-5 was discovered when the George W. Goethals, an American vessel, saw a telescope buoy floated from the submarine. The buoy was ringing and a small boat was lowered from the Goethals. The telephone operator in the submarine said the vessel had been disabled then for 35 hours. She was almost vertical, making it impossible to release any of the crew through the torpedo tubes, which are in the bow. A later message from the telephone operator said the submarine's air was being exhausted.

Divers were then lowered from the Goethals, a small hole cut in the submarine and an air hose lowered.

NEAR BEER NOT SO HARD TO TAKE

"Just give us a little time and I believe we will get used to drinking water," said an old time drinker of lager beer, the kind made before the war—not the civil war but the recent world war—as he was stowing away in small swallows a seven ounce glass of what is now called "near beer" in one of the surviving dispensing stations on North Front street Wednesday evening, that were called saloons before the eighteenth amendment was passed.

Dealers in the "near beer," who formerly sold lager beer of three to four per cent, alcoholic content, say that while their former patrons stopped coming to their places as frequently they are gradually coming back and "getting used to the new stuff," and expressed the opinion that after a time those who survive, and new drinkers after sampling the beverages made in New Jersey, New York, Albany, Ellenville and other places that are brought to Kingston and now being dispensed, will acquire a liking for some particular brew that pleases their palate and that about next year the dealer who happens to handle the kind that suits will then get business. As there is no license to pay the state or government for selling the "near beer" and those who sell it can keep open on a Sunday, the retailer if he dispenses it to any considerable extent will make more money than he ever did on the old time lager which was sold at five cents for a schooner or ten ounce glass, where as he is now getting 10 cents for a seven ounce glass and some of them are only putting out a five ounce glass.

What is "hurting" the surviving saloon is the making of home brew by families in this city. It being estimated by sellers of the "makings," which is a can of malt mixture and a package of hops, that fully 1,000 families are engaged in this new home industry. According to statements of those who have made home brew and those who are drinking the brews after ageing a week or more have from six to eight per cent alcoholic content and there is an ample kick in every bottle. As from five to six gallons can be made from one can and package, which retails at from $1 to $2, because of competition, the gallons become equal to two cases of twenty-four bottles each, it can readily be seen the cost is very much less than that of a similar quantity of bottled "near beer," as that is sold for about $2 the case.

THE WAY OUT.

Every once in a while a man who knows what he is talking about will say something that is to the point, and something that rings with accuracy from his first utterance until he has finished what he has to say. An instance was offered recently when United States Senator James W. Wadsworth took up the question of the high cost of living, getting at the cause, and also showing a way to meet it. Senator Wadsworth went straight to farming conditions generally, and no one who heard what he had to say would question the force of his words. The strength of what he said, however, rested in the main fact that he knew what he was talking about, which is more than can be said of all public speakers.

Senator Wadsworth was talking to farmers and he had to have his facts. But that he did have them was evidenced by the reception he received during and after the address. Inasmuch as the three succeeding paragraphs give exactly what the Senator said, no more comment need be made on the power of his remarks for they speak for themselves, and today make valuable reading. Striking right from the shoulder, Senator Wadsworth said:

To my mind the only solution of this problem lies in the organization of agriculture. If the farmers will organize, cooperative societies so that agriculture will be regarded as one of the great organized businesses of the world, then there will be a way out.

I regard it as the duty of the nation and of the state to write on their statute books regulations to encourage and control the great business of agriculture. When agriculture reaches the point where it again becomes secure, the flood of young men from the farms to the cities will cease.

Further than that, I regard it as the duty of the nation to see that the educational facilities of the country are just as adequate as those of the city. We know that resources in the country are not sufficient to build great elaborate institutions. But we are all Americans whether we live in the city or on the farm. By financial aid from Washington or from Albany, let us build up these facilities. By doing so we should do more for the people of the United States than all the international contracts you can write from now until doom's day.

THE WHITE MAN'S BURDEN.

Not long ago the American administration of the affairs of Santo Domingo was described by the former secretary to the Minister of Finance of the Dominican Republic as "an arbitrary and inefficient militarism," but, inasmuch as this former secretary is a German of the name of Otto Schoenrich, it may be taken for granted that his view is more jaundiced than impartial. A very different story is now told in the report of Rear-Admiral Snowden, Governor of Santo Domingo under the military regime established by the United States when the affairs of the troubled little country of black-and-tan population were taken over. The American military governor may have ruled with a high hand at times because he had to, but the report shows an efficient administration. According to Admiral Snowden, the revenues of the island have been increased from $200,000 to more than $1,000,000 annually, payments on the bonded debt are such that it may be possible to pay off the $20,000,000 loan thirty years before maturity, taxes unfair to the poor have been readjusted, a public school system established, and roads and public buildings constructed.

In short, order and peace have succeeded chaos and peril; the people may live without fear of extortions and are at least on the road to material prosperity. Santo Domingo under American rule seems to be a fairly successful experiment in what is called "benevolent assimilation" in the early days of our occupation of the Philippines. We have been doing in Santo Domingo pretty much the same thing in the past that has been done for generations in many parts of the world and to defend our work in this instance is to defend theirs in many others. To be sure, it doesn't square theoretically with the popular doctrine of the self-determination of small peoples, but in practice all theories must be adapted to conditions. No nation in these times can escape a "sphere of influence" and if it does not do a certain amount of police work in that sphere, other big nations will demand the right to come in with their warships and collect their just debts, the difficulty about this being that they can't get their money without taking over the little debtor nation's revenues and camping in its front yard for a term of years. So there you are.

The severance of the Federal government from the control of inland transportation came the first of March, under the terms of the Each-Cummins railroad act, passed by the Republican congress. The separation of the government from the operation of our merchant marine is now well under way, in accordance with the terms of the Jones merchant marine act, also passed by the Republican congress. Advertisements are out by the Shipping Board for the sale of its steel ships on a basis that should make them attractive to private operators. Ten per cent only is demanded in cash, five per cent every six months until 30 per cent has been paid, and the balance of 70 per cent in semi-annual installments over a period of ten years. Other features provide for the transfer of title under mortgage when 50 per cent of purchase price has been paid, and the payment of dividends from revenues to the amount of 15 per cent of the paid-up installments.

Hanged for Not Drinking.

An old English story tells of "the mother of Betsy" who was hanged for leaving his ale. It arises from the story that on the way to the gallows where Betsy's mother was executed she refused to take the ale which was the custom to give the condemned a farewell drink of beer. A soldier, marking for death, contemptuously refused the proffered draught and was promptly hanged. By just as many witnesses later on he had declined to take a farewell draught as a reward.

STATE PATROLMEN DINED AND SANG THURSDAY NIGHT

Much Musical Ability Displayed at Annual Banquet at Pessenar's Grill Where Delegates Were the Guests of Local Association—Major Chandler and Mayor Canfield Among Speakers.

It was a jolly crowd of policemen who assembled at Pessenar's grill on Railroad avenue Thursday evening, following a ride around the Ashokan reservoir, for the annual banquet of the New York State Patrolmen's Association, which closed its eighteenth annual convention here that day. The banquet was the crowning event of the two days' session, and was thoroughly enjoyed by the policemen.

Motorcycle Officer Andrew W. Walker, president of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association, presided at the head of the big table as toastmaster, and Andy's most intimate friends were astounded at the ease with which he handled the situation, and introduced the speakers of the evening.

While the following toast menu was being served by Mine Host, Pessenar, Al King, the New York baritone, rendered a number of vocal tones, assisted by Harry Maiseholder, leader of the Citizens' Band, at the piano.

What They Ate.

Cream Chicken a la Meun
Celery Queen Glives

Broiled lake trout saute Meunier
Broiled Squab Chicken

Potatoes a la Meunier

Sweet corn on cob de beurre

Boston head lettuce sliced tomatoes

French dressing

Neapolitan ice cream

Frosted raisin squares

Demi tasse

Fruit punch.

"Pete" Camp a Vocalist.

While Al was resting between solos unexpected musical talent developed among the delegates, and the fun waxed fast and furious as here and there an out of town policeman casually strolled to the piano, whispered a word in Professor Maiseholder's ear who proceeded to tickle the ivories with some familiar song of a bygone day sung by the policeman with the others bearing down hard on the chorus.

It was in this way that the discovery was made by those present that Officer Peter Camp of the local department is the happy possessor of a high tenor voice which could be heard soaring high above the baritone and basses of the other members present. It is a known fact that there are other members of the department who can also sing but "Gus" Kuehn, P. J. White, "Bill" Reardon, "Pete" Keresman, Jim Simpson, and Andy Walker claimed they had a host of other important matters, and had no time to render solos.

And it must be said that the musical taste of the police was excellent ranging from the "Sunshine of Your Smile" to "Silver Threads Among the Gold" and one officer insisted on singing a grand opera selection that he had home on a phonograph record.

Walker As Toastmaster.
After the good things served had been placed where they would do the most good, and the musical end of the program had slowed down, President Walker in his easy and good humored manner introduced Mayor Canfield, the first speaker of the evening. The mayor was in excellent form and proceeded to tell several humorous stories, and then growing serious he told of the work of a policeman and how it had developed through the years. He called attention to the remarkable work accomplished by the use of the finger print system, and told some interesting incidents connected with police work. The mayor said that Kingston had one of the most efficient police departments, if not the most efficient, in the state, and paid a tribute to the men in the department. He again extended the hearty greeting to the visiting policemen and trusted that they would again visit Kingston.

President Dolan Speaks.

President Thomas P. Dolan of Albany, head of the state association, was the next speaker. He is a retired policeman, and is thoroughly familiar with police work. He believed that the police were entitled to higher pay, and called attention to the fact that while in other trades a man was able to travel from city to city where the best wages were being paid, a man who learned his trade as an officer was not able to go to another city where the pay might be higher and get a job on the police department of that city. He said he was proud of the fact that not a single policeman in New York state had walked out or gone on strike during the labor troubles that swept over the country. The association had been formed some twenty years ago to promote better feeling among the police departments and to increase their efficiency and to work for better pay and better hours for the policeman.

Major Chandler's Ideas.

Major Chandler, head of the New York state troopers, gave an interesting talk on the work of a policeman. He believed among other things that a policeman should be equipped with a more snappy uniform than those at present in use in the cities of the state. He also believed that an officer should carry his gun in plain sight where he could quickly draw it if necessary. He outlined briefly the work of the state troopers and said that they were not trying to conflict with the police departments of the city, but rather wanted to co-operate in every manner with the departments, and that fact was known and appreciated by the police departments throughout the state.

The state troopers now number about 245 men and during the nearly three years they have been in existence their record of work far exceeds that of the state troopers of Pennsylvania, the only other state in the union having such a force of men.

Major Chandler believed in the establishment of a training school for policemen and the abolishing of the civil service rules that now govern the appointment of a patrolman. He also believed that an officer should receive more pay.

Bennett and Schirick Speak.

Police Commissioner William R. Bennett and City Judge Schirick were the last speakers of the evening. Commissioner Bennett said he had never made a speech in his life, and did not intend to start in now, but he was glad of the opportunity of extending a welcome to the state patrolmen. He concurred with the other speakers, he said, in the belief that a policeman was entitled to better pay and shorter working hours.

Judge Schirick called attention to the work of the police department in Kingston and paid it a high and deserved tribute. He also believed that a policeman was entitled to better pay and working hours and in closing said that he also was glad of an opportunity of extending a welcome to the visitors.

Was a Big Success.
The entire work of arranging the program for the convention was in the hands of Officer James V. Simpson, first vice president of the state association, President Andrew W. Walker, of the local association, and members of the association, and that the program went through without a hitch is due to the work of the members of the city association, who left no stone unturned to make the convention the success it was.

The banquet that night was a fitting close to a successful two days.

BASEBALL AT DUTCHESS FAIR

The Hon. J. Griswold Webb, president of the Dutchess County Agricultural Society, has arranged for a series of baseball games at Rhinebeck on the first three days of the county fair between the best and most evenly matched teams in Dutchess county.

On Wednesday, September 8, Dover will oppose Staatsburgh, which means something doing every minute from start to finish. On Thursday, September 9, Amenia will settle scores with the old rivals, the Webb Club. On Friday, September 10, Millbrook and Rhinebeck will settle a much mooted question between these two places as to who's who. The games will commence each day at 4 o'clock.

NEAR EAST RELIEF.

Old Clothing Badly Needed—Deliver at Court House.

During the months of August and September, the Near East Relief is collecting a shipment of clothing for Armenia, the oldest Christian nation in the world. The needy over there will have no other clothes this winter save those which are then collected by the Near East Relief. All of us have garments that are not in use, that we really do not need. Hence, we should give that which we do not need to those who do need.

Last year the clothes that were sent were eagerly sought, even by people of education and of one time wealth, as well as by widows and children, for all alike had nothing else to replace the tattered, patched remnants of garments that they wore when driven into the desert by the Turks, four years before.

There were not enough to go around and thousands froze to death or died of disease brought on by exposure to the severe cold of the mountain climate of Armenia. Conditions this winter will be as bad or worse than last winter. In Armenia, six months in the year the people shiver, hence clothes and shoes are needed for the fathers, mothers, sons and daughters, especially clothing for children.

Bundles may be delivered to the Near East receiving station at the court house, on or before September 15. The Near East Relief will do the rest, sorting the clothing into bundles, bale and ship them and distribute them to the shivering orphans and most needy refugees.

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, Sept. 2.—Next Sunday, at the Methodist Episcopal Church the subject of the morning sermon will be, "The Ideal Steward."

During the last two months, vacation months, were pleased to see so many present at the services. But from now on we are expecting a still larger number at the services. Every department of the church work should show greater enthusiasm. Last Sunday morning our services were greatly enhanced by the splendid solo of Mrs. Irving Schoonmaker. We trust we may have the pleasure of hearing her again soon. We are also glad to have our pianist, Miss Pauline Paen, again with us who rendered a splendid voluntary in the morning and an offertory in the evening.

One week from Sunday next at the union service the pastor will begin a series of sermons on "The Prodigal Son," illustrated by stereoscopic views. Further notice will be given of this next week.

Do not forget the play, "Mrs. Tubbs Does Her Bit," to be given in the basement of the Reformed Church on Friday evening, September 3, at 8 o'clock, standard time by Hurley talent. Admission: Adults, 25c; children, 15c. Ice cream and cake for sale. Proceeds for the local C. E. Society and the Hurley Reformed Church.

There will be special services in the Reformed Church on Sunday evening, September 5. These services will be in charge of the Local Union and will consist of interesting talks by out of town speakers and also the choir of the Reformed Church are planning some special music.

Many from this village attended the Farm Bureau picnic held at Hurley on Wednesday.

The Ladies Aid of the Reformed Church expect to hold the annual cleaning "bee" on Thursday afternoon and Friday morning.

Miss Elizabeth Elmendorf expects to attend New Paltz Normal the coming year.

William Weber has purchased a new car.

Frederick Davis has a new Dodge. The play given in the Grange hall by the Marmel Club was fine. Every one present enjoyed every bit of it. It could be impossible to give praise to any one of the characters because every one's part seemed just "the part" suitable for that particular young lady.

WALKER VALLEY.

Walker Valley, Sept. 2.—Mrs. C. F. Keller presented her Sunday school class of boys with jackknives. Mr. and Mrs. William Buckridge of Newark are spending their vacation with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Buckridge.

Mrs. M. A. Donovan has purchased a car. Walter Ringland has also purchased a car.

Grades of Wholes.

In the olden times there were three grades of whistles. The black whistle was a harmful effect, and the white whistle was a helpful effect. Then there was the gray whistle, which was somewhat harmful and somewhat helpful. Indifference against persons around of "whistles" had to save the complexion of the spirit that bewitched.

ISSUE MEMORIALS FOR SOLDIERS

Congressman Ward has received information regarding death and wound certificates which are being prepared by the war department. These memorials in the form of certificates bearing the facsimile of the signature of the president will be issued to the next of kin of those of officers, enlisted men, field clerks and other members of the authorized military establishment who died in the service during the world war.

Wound certificates bearing the facsimile of the signature of the president will be issued to all officers, enlisted men, field clerks and other members of the authorized military establishment who were wounded in the service of the United States during the late war. No more than one certificate being issued for any one man.

The memorials will be engrossed by states in alphabetical order and mailed in suitable tubes to the addresses of the persons entitled thereto as shown by the records of the war department.

No application for a memorial is necessary or required. The memorials will be mailed to each person entitled thereto as rapidly as they are engrossed. Owing to delays in securing suitable paper and to the amount of work involved in preparing the certificates, it will be well toward the end of the present calendar year before the last of the certificates are ready for mailing. The wound certificates will be the first to be prepared.

Spencer Popular in America.
Herbert Spencer, the great philosopher, was more popular in America during his life than in England. When Spencer visited the United States, in 1882, his fame and influence were so securely established that one admirer offered to pay all the expenses incurred by the philosopher on his trip, and heads of railways offered him the most luxurious traveling facilities, while other friends vied with one another to make the tour comfortable, interesting and instructive.

ANCIENT LAWS OF INTEREST

Oldest Known Written Code Max Recently Been Translated by Eminent French Scientist.

What is said to be the oldest known written code of laws in the world, probably antedating that of Hammurabi by at least 1,000 years, has been discovered in part among the hitherto untranslated clay tablets from Nippur at the University of Pennsylvania museum.

The Hammurabi code was prepared about 2300 B. C. and was discovered about 20 years ago on a large diorite stone by French explorers.

The laws, just translated by Abbe School of Paris, deal with responsibilities of hired servants, rentals, rights of slave women who have borne children to their masters, punishment for adultery, etc.

One interesting statute provides that rentals must run for three years in case a man has taken over a house the owner does not know how to manage. This is somewhat obscure and may mean that all rentals were for that term. In any event property could not be sold or be improperly used.

In case a slave bore children to her master she and the offspring were free, and if the master married the slave the children became legitimate.

Gifted Imagination.
"Mrs. Agnes has great gifts of imagination, hasn't she?"
"I don't know. Why do you think so?"
"I heard her speaking of the flat they live in as 'her town house.'"

ULSTER COUNTY MAN A SUICIDE

John Klepper, a former resident of Allgerville, Ulster county, killed himself Wednesday afternoon in Poughkeepsie by blowing out his brains with a shot gun. Despondency and a belief that he was being persecuted by his enemies was the cause of his taking his life.

Klepper went from Allgerville to Poughkeepsie about June 1, 1919, and worked about in several bakeries in that city for short periods after which he would refuse to go back to work telling his wife that his employers were persecuting him and that they were all his enemies. Klepper had been ill and according to his wife had made repeated threats to take his life.

On Tuesday he took down the old shot gun which he had on the farm, and kept in the bedroom hanging on the wall. After inspecting it he told his wife that it was broken and would not work. Wednesday he again took the gun down and was working with it. About 2 o'clock in the afternoon Mrs. Klepper was called to the kitchen to take care of some work and stepped to the porch for a few minutes. She had no sooner done so than she heard the report of the gun and running back found her husband lying on the floor, dead.

Apparently as soon as his wife was out of the room, Klepper sat on the edge of a sofa and placed the barrel of the gun in his mouth, pulled the trigger. His body rolled to the floor with the gun under him. When pulled from under the body by Detective Joseph V. Shelly the gun was broken as though an attempt had been made to take the shell from the barrel, but on closer investigation it was found that the gun was out of repair and that it had to be held in place by the suicide so that it might work.

HAY BALEERS.

Must Comply With Weights and Measures Law.

Complaints have been received by the state bureau of weights and measures that pressers are not properly marking bales of hay and straw, and in some cases the bales bear no markings of any kind.

Commissioner Eugene H. Porter states that the weights and measures law requires that each bale must be marked with a card or tag the size of which must be not less than one and one-half inches wide and three inches long, on which must appear the name and business address of the presser, together with the correct weight of the bale.

Any person violating this law is subject to a penalty and W. T. White, director of the bureau of weights and measures, has instructed the city and county sealers to report all violations found by them in order that the guilty persons may be prosecuted where circumstances warrant.

Condensation by William Fenwick Harris

The time is which Charles Kingsley lived and wrote was akin to our own. The rising of the oppressed workers and the social reform in England following the revolution of 1848 in France were in a small way similar to the impetus toward freedom and human rights which the Russian revolution brought throughout the world.

His death scene for hypochondria and his fearless love of justice made him a natural champion of the oppressed. "Alton Locke" and "Hypatia" both appeared the year after the revolution. "The First in a Series" is an exposition of the sweating system in which London low life and working class men are depicted with extraordinary vividness and understanding. "Hypatia" written in burning indignation at the condition of the agricultural laborer in England, has a "depth and passion and power a life, an intensity, the tenth part of which would make the fortune of a novel now."

Kingsley was a tireless worker for practical reform, but the great reason he tried to convey was that "the future welfare of society demands a new outburst of the latent forces of Christ's religion." It was not surprising, therefore, that he should have turned from English settings and subjects, in which he was so passionately interested, to a study of the fifth century. The empire at that period was enslaving the masses; a universal fermentation of human thought was in process. The Young Church and the Old World were at grips in a death struggle. He wished to prove in a novel of that epoch that "Christianity is the only really democratic creed," so he wrote the brilliant and tragic "Hypatia."

The richness of Kingsley's personality is realized as our turn from "Hypatia" to the incomparable "Water Babies," whimsical, charming, eternally delightful to big and little children.

PHILAMMON could bear no more. Another moment and he had hurried down through the dense mass of spectators, clearing rank after rank of seats by the sheer strength of madness, leaped the balustrade into the orchestra below, and rushed across the space to the foot of the platform.

"Pelagia! Sister! My sister! Have mercy on me! on yourself! I will hide you! save you! and we will flee together out of this infernal place this world of devils! I am your brother! Come!"

She looked at him one moment with wide, wild eyes—the truth flashed on her—

"Brother!"

And she sprang from the platform into his arms.

A vision of a lofty window in Athens, looking out over fair olive yards and gardens, and the bright roofs and basins of the Piræus, and the broad blue sea, with the purple peaks of Aegina beyond all—and a dark-eyed boy, with his arm around her neck, pointed laughing to the twinkling masts in the far harbor, and called her sister—the dead soul woke within her; and with a wild cry she recoiled from him in an agony of shame, and covering her face with both her hands, sank down among the blood-stained sands.

A yell, as of all hell broke loose, rang along that vast circle.

"Down with him! Away with him! Crucify the slave! Give the barbarian to the beasts! To the beasts with him, noble Prefect!"

The pleasure-loving people of Alexandria did not take kindly to the youth who so rudely interrupted the delicious spectacle which their prefect had staged for them. "Aphrodite Rising From the Sea."

It was Alexandria in the fifth century of our era. The city founded by a king who dreamed not in empires, but in continents, placed at the strategic point where it would command three of those great units, had achieved a pre-eminence in beauty, in vice, in learning, in turbulence, in the cosmopolitan character of its people.

The three continents which Alexander would unite into one had poured into his city their best and their worst, and each strove desperately for supremacy. Many a man in those days must have thought that East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet, though meet they did in way as tempestuous as the most violent of matrimony.

The empire, nominally Christian in the persons of the rulers since the unsuccessful attempt of Julian to turn back the hands of time to the faith of paganism, found itself in constant clashes with the growing power of the church; crested the imperial prefect, and civil the militant bishop, and with each other in dispatches to Constantinople, each complaining at the other's usurpation; the ring of legation and the vast throngs of monks each entertained a considerable respect for the fighting qualities of the other.

The Jews were in great numbers and were not in the happiest position between their king and empire; while the descendants of Alexander's Macedonians, and Greeks from all quarters of the eastern Mediterranean, could not forget that they had once been the masters of Egypt. Constant conflict in the streets between the partisans of each side laid a living scene for Charles Kingsley's religious philosophy in "Hypatia."

to the altar—right underneath the great, still Christ; and there even those hell hounds paused.

"She shook herself free from her tormentors, and springing back, rose for one moment to her full height, naked, snow white against the dusky mags around, shame and indignation in those wide, clear eyes, but not a stain of fear. With one hand she clasped her golden locks around her; the other long, white arm was stretched upward toward the great still Christ, appealing—and who dare say, in vain?—from man to God. Her lips were opened to speak; but the words that should have come from them reached God's ears alone; for in an instant they struck her down, the dark mass closed over her again—and then wait on wall, car-piercing, rang along the vaulted-rooms, and thrilled like the trumpet of avenging angels through Philammon's ears."

Giving Her Fair Warning.

John had just been reprimanded by his mother for something he had done, when he went into the bedroom where his new little baby sister was lying in her crib. His mother overheard him say: "Sister, you ought to go back where you came from; you can't do anything you want to do here."

Cheeriness.

We all know some persons of whom it is said that they carry sunshine wherever they go. Helen Hunt Jackson says: "Cheeriness is a thing to be more profoundly grateful for than all that genius ever inspired or talent ever accomplished. Next best to natural, spontaneous cheeriness, is deliberate, intended and persistent cheeriness, which we can create, can cultivate and can so foster and cherish that after a few years the world will never suspect that it was not a hereditary gift." Such persons are always and everywhere welcome. Consider the opposite character. Who wishes to live with a grumbler?

ETHEL BOVEE A TWO-TIME THIEF

A Year Ago She Burglarized Home of Burdette Van Aken at Port Ewen, and Last Month Robbed Home of Harry Elmendorf in That Village—Sent To Institution.

Ethel Bovee, 15 years old, was found guilty of burglarizing the home of Harry B. Elmendorf at Port Ewen on Thursday before Judge McKenzie in that place and the judge committed her to the New York State training school for girls at Hudson until discharged by law. She was committed on an offense committed a year ago when she burglarized the home of Burdette T. Van Aken in that village.

Last September she entered the Van Aken home and stole articles and was later arrested and found guilty. At that time Judge McKenzie took into consideration her age, 14 years, and placed her under parole to report to the Rev. Mr. Appeldoorn of that village, which she did.

About August 24 of this year while the Elmendorf family were away on a two weeks' vacation the Bovee girl broke a pane of glass in a window on the lower floor, unfastened the window and climbed through into the house, and stole articles valued at about $75 to $100.

Wednesday Mr. Elmendorf, after consulting with Judge McKenzie, reported the matter to the Bovee home on the river road and under the pillow of the girl's bed found a gold clock, one of the articles stolen from the Elmendorf home. The girl when questioned by the troopers confessed she had hidden the rest of the loot in the cedar grove near her home. She accompanied the troopers to the hiding place where the other missing articles were found. They were utterly ruined by the heavy rain falls that had occurred since she had hidden the plunder.

As Ethel had violated her parole of a year ago when she was found guilty of robbing the Van Aken home Judge McKenzie committed her on that charge, and she was taken to the county jail to await the arrival of an attendant from the Hudson institution.

PETER WINNE HIT BY AUTO

Peter Winne was struck by an auto at Shandaken this afternoon at one o'clock while he was engaged in putting tar on the road. His clothing was caught fast in the machine, dragging him through the tar for some distance. He was brought to the Benedictine Sanitarium and attended by Dr. H. P. Van Wageningen who found that he had sustained a compound fracture of the leg and injuries to the shoulder and an arm. He may also be suffering from a fractured skull. The number of the auto and the name of the occupant were taken by neighbors at Shandaken but not disclosed to any one at the sanitarium or to Dr. Van Wageningen.

HOPE ON.

There was never a day so misty and gray
That the blue was not somewhere above it.
There is never a mountain top over so bleak.
That some little flower does not love it.
There was never a night so dreary and dark
That the stars were not somewhere shining.
There is never a cloud so heavy and black
That it does not a silver lining.
There is never a waiting time, weary and long.
That will not some time have an ending.
The most beautiful part of the landscape is where
The shadows and sunshine are blending
Upon every life some shadows will fall.
But heaven sends the sunshine of love;
Through the rifts in the clouds we may,
If we will,
See the beautiful blue above.

Then let us hope on, though the way be long.
And the darkness be gathering fast;
For the turn in the road is a little way on.
Where the home lights will greet us at last.

DISEASE CARRIED BY INSECTS

Small Creatures Not Only Offensive, but Constitute a Positive Menace to Health.

The role of insects in the transmission of diseases is becoming more prominent each year, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The fly, the mosquito, the flea and the "cootie" have come to represent not merely offensive nuisances to man, but also positive menaces to his health. The habits of these insects have therefore become of interest to the medical investigator and the sanitary expert no less than to the entomologist.

It has been definitely determined that the last named of these disease carriers is sensitive to temperatures that approach the body temperature of man. Owing to the high temperature of the body in summer, they wander out on ordinary garments. For the same reason they wander away from persons in fever. It is recorded that persons leaving a temperate climate for the tropics may become freed from these pests.

It has also been found that black clothing may repel them, for the reason that it absorbs more heat rays than lighter colors. Perspiration, induced by warm clothing will also hasten the exodus, since the "cootie" does not tolerate excessive moisture.

"Ye Old King James."

The Tottenham magistrates have just transferred the license of "Ye Old King James and Ye Tinker." This quaintly-styled tavern claims to have been established for over a thousand years.

The house stands in White Webb's Lane, near Walham Cross, and not far from Theobald's Park. The king was James I. and the tinker was drinking beer there or quaffing ale, when his majesty stopped at the house during a royal hunt in Enfield Chase. The tinker expressed a desire to see a king in the flesh. James said he should, and took him along with him on his horse to where his nobles were awaiting him. He then disclosed his identity to the astonished tinker, and wound up the incident by conferring a knighthood upon him. That, at any rate, is the story.—London Mail.

Fire God Diverts Flow of Lava.

During the recent lava flow down the side of Mount Loa on the island of Hawaii an ancient Chinese farmer looked out of his doorway to see the molten mass making straight for his hut. Panic stricken, he called upon all the gods he had ever heard of to spare his home and his farm, but to no avail until an old Hawaiian helper screamed, "Pray to Hii!"—the Hawaiian God of Fire. The Oriental fell upon his knees and prayed loudly and earnestly. To his great relief the flow changed its course just in time by making an almost right angle turn without apparent cause, flowed on past his home, and then made a sharp turn back to its original course. Proof of this freak of the flow is furnished by the now solidified lava which surrounds the farm on three sides.

THE LUCKY SMITH.

A public gathering in a country town was interrupted by the entrance of one who made his way to the platform and whispered excitedly to the chairman. "Is Mr. Smith in the audience?" broke forth the presiding officer. "I am informed that his house is afire." Forty gentlemen sprang to their feet. "It is the house of Mr. John Smith," added the chairman. "Thank God," fervently exclaimed one man, resuming his seat.—Everybody's Magazine.

Would Never Do.

"Here are some crisp new bills."
"I don't want them."
"No?"
"No, people will think we haven't had our money very long."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Oh, Man!

"For three days and nights I have suffered agony from a raging tooth ache."
"Why don't you have it pulled?"
"I would, but I'm afraid it would hurt."—Boston Transcript.

Carried Always in Danger
Carried, the famous health agent is built on a most unshakable basis, and on the best scientific principles have to be constantly watched and the pressure kept down that the body be destroyed.

ODDS AND ENDS.

P. J. Ryan, employed in the U. & D. storehouse, stepped on a rusty nail which pierced his foot this morning. Dr. Keefe dressed the wound.

BARNEY LOUGHRAN HURT

In a Fall at Little Falls and is in Hospital There.

Barney Loughran, the genial superintendent of the L. F. Dannon Company, is confined in the Little Falls Hospital from injuries received Thursday when he fell while at work in the high school there and sustained among other injuries, a fractured rib. His injuries, however, are not considered serious. The Dannon Company was recently awarded the contract to install the plumbing and heating in the high school in Little Falls and Mr. Loughran had charge of the work.

Dr. Keefe Is Home.

Wasn't Quite Ready for Ride.

As the town where we stayed last summer was out of the beaten track of automobiles, Bobby was both curious and afraid of our car when we came there. At first nothing would induce him to take a ride in it. After one of our outings to just sit in it, he finally was not afraid of the car (who town to him and whispered in a most serious manner: "Tell those people when I get older and tamer I'll ride with them.")

Children and Books.

It does the child no harm to make the acquaintance of books which were not written for children. In a home where the great books that have inspired or amused successive generations are accessible, an active-minded child is likely at some time or other to get at them. If we want our children to fall in love with the better kind of books, let us provide them with opportunities for meeting such books without too much formality.

Origin of "Pitched Battle."

"A pitched battle" originated in the days of knight-errantry and was so called then because boiling pitch was used by the defenders of a feudal castle to repel the attacking force. The battles, which usually took place outside the castle walls, would soon end when the boiling pitch began to flow from a tank on top of the walls. This originated the term "a pitched battle."

Florida's Big Spring.

What is the largest spring in the world? Florida has one which must be near the head of the list. This is called Wakulla spring. It is 400 feet across, is 50 feet deep and flows at the rate of 120,000 gallons of water every minute. It gives rise to a river 250 feet wide at its source. This mammoth spring is situated about fifteen miles from Tallahassee.

"Shun-Pike."

Not all dictionaries contain the word "shun-pike," but it was in common use in this country a century ago and throws an amusing light on the character of some of our thrifty ancestors. A "shun-pike" was a short byroad that left a turnpike on one side of a tollgate and joined it again on the other.—Youth's Companion.

MORE MINERS TAKE "VACATIONS"

Although Production Is Curtailed 300,000 Tons Per Day, Crest of Movement Is Believed Reached—Men Leaving District.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Sept. 3.—The whole anthracite industry is practically at a standstill today, but the vacation movement of insurgents in and out of the ranks of the United Mine Workers seems to have reached its crest.

First signs of a break in the insurgent strike came last night when several local unions voted to return to work and stand by the officials of the miners union. Such action did not bring about any change in the situation today and it is not likely to until after Labor Day, but early next week it is believed there will be a "go back to the mines" movement.

Reports from throughout the field show that there are more men absent from their work today than yesterday, about 135 collieries being idle and 130,000 men joining in the strike.

Each day represents a loss of about 200,000 tons in production and about $25,000 to the men in wages.

Districts seven and nine are well tied up and district one is operating only about one-fourth of its collieries.

An unexpected danger of the "vacation" is an exodus of the mine workers from the anthracite fields. Large numbers of men are leaving for the soft coal regions and others are heading for the seat of the automobile industry. This will seriously curtail production if peace is declared. With no coal in storage and the winter coming on there is bound to be a great shortage of anthracite, experts predict.

ROXBURY PLAYS HERE TOMORROW

Saturday afternoon the Kingston baseball team will line up against the Roxbury team at 3 o'clock at the Athletic Field. Although the Roxbury team has a good reputation up the line and comes with a good record, the local players are uncertain as to just what to expect from the visitors. However, the team from Roxbury may prove to be the surprise of the season and at any rate, it will be a good game. The local boys have settled down and have been playing a good game of late.

Monday, Labor Day, will be the big baseball game of the season when the Kayes, meet the Kingston team in a double header at Athletic Field. As both teams are home teams and have some of the best local players in the game, the contest is going to be a hard fought one.

With such men as Eddie Scherer, Freddie Stoudt, Nels Miles, Joe Coffey, Kiernan, Avery, McMahon and others in the Kayes lineup the Kingstonians will have to step some to come out on the long end of the score and continue their winning streak. The first game will be played in the morning and the second in the afternoon. Both teams will put their strongest lineup in the field in an effort to make it two straight and two first class games can be expected by the local fans.

The Goodyears Won.

The Goodyears defeated the Young Tigers by a score 5 to 4. The lineup for Goodyears was: Alfred Finley, catcher; Robert Smith, pitcher and 1st base; John Reichle, 1st base and pitcher; D. Hinkley, 2nd base; Thomas Smith, 3rd base; Arthur Golnok, short stop; Clarence Reichle, left field; Edgar Peterson, center field. That Eastern Revolution.

Everywhere we hear talk of the "coming revolution"—as though there was ever a time in the history of humanity when a revolution wasn't on the way!

After Adam and Eve fell for the serpent the work-a-revolution took place.

After humanity got so natural that life became downright wicked Jehovah sprung the Revolution of the Flood.

Way back about that time Prometheus announced a revolution because Zeus begged all the Aphrodites himself.

Then came the redoubt revolutions of historical memory down to the "one just ahead." It's an old and time-

Writing With the Tongue.

An apparatus has been invented which will enable an amputee man to feed himself, wash his face, use a typewriter, use a knife and fork, or light his pipe or a cigarette.

This invention is worked with the tongue, and consists of a few steel wires set in a frame, with arms like two of the legs of an enormous spider, attached to a table after the principle of a Rothen brake.

The inventor, who has also perfected a machine for writing with the tongue, is a Dr. George Thompson, a physician of Edinburgh, Scotland. These apparatuses will be used in one of the training schools, and if approved will be supplied to men rendered amputee by the war.
